West's Big 3 Ministers Will Confer Today

New West German Accord Is Sought

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Western Big Three foreign ministers open their conference here tomorrow with the new partnership deal for West Germany reported to be a primary objective.

Expecting final details to be ironed out by Secretary of State Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France, other officials said today the Western Allies have sound reasons to believe the Bonn government will enter the Western defense lineup by November.

Fly To Washington

Acheson, Morrison and Schuman were flying to Washington today from the Japanese peace treaty conference at San Francisco.

For the next four days they are expected to turn from Asian problems and devote attention in large part to European and Middle East issues. The Korean fighting, nevertheless, holds a prominent place on the agenda, devoted as it is mostly to strategy in the struggle with Communist imperialism.

Beginning tomorrow, the three are due to start consideration of the draft of a new "contractual arrangement" offering West Germany a postwar settlement with major items like those given Japan in her peace treaty.

Three-Point Proposal

Taking the place of a present occupation statute imposed by the Allies as occupying powers, the proposal would:

1. Give West Germany full sovereignty with some security safeguard for the three powers.
2. Abolish the three-power Allied High Commission. It would be succeeded probably by a council of ambassadors.
3. Change the status of the occupation troops to defense forces, responsible for helping safeguard with Germany as well as Western Europe generally from an Soviet aggression.

Royalist Greek Rally Party Sets Pace In Election

Papagos In Front, Plastiras Second

ATHENS, Greece, Monday, Sept. 10 (AP)—A war hero new to politics, Field Marshal Alexander Papagos, was leading today in the race for leadership of the Greek government.

With more than 10 per cent of the returns counted from yesterday's parliamentary elections, Papagos' new royalist Greek Rally Party had a margin that, if maintained, may give him an absolute majority in parliament.

He campaigned as a staunch royalist against opposition from his former friend, King Paul, who discarded royal custom to play politics in a try to defeat the popular field marshal.

"Man On White Horse"

Papagos was campaigned by his followers as "the man on the white horse"—a hero of the World War II defense against invading Italians and the more recent defeat of the Greek Communists.

Another war hero, called "the man on the black horse," Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, was running a strong surprise second in the early returns on his somewhat leftist Progressive Union Party candidates.

A clear-cut winner would have the premiership backed by a solid party instead of the customary Greek coalition of several parties.

The incumbent Liberal Party of ex-Premier Sophocles Venizelos was running fourth, behind the third-place Communist-backed Democratic Front.

Papagos Has 36% Vote

It was estimated before the elections that if Papagos gained 35 to 40 per cent of the popular vote, he would get a majority of parliament under the complicated reinforced proportional system.

Returns from 490 precincts showed Papagos had 36 per cent.

The unofficial count from 490 precincts out of a total 3,910 in Greece showed:

Papagos 93,006, Plastiras 65,032, Democratic Front 43,281, Liberals 28,189, Populists 17,487, Social Democrats (George Papandreou) 4,369, Socialists 1,391.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Sept. 9 (AP)—Bermuda was hit lightly by the fringes of a tropical hurricane today but was spared from damage by a strange, diverting encounter of two hurricanes at sea.

The Weather Bureau said this was the first recorded instance of such a battle of the elements.

The unique duel dissipated the power of both hurricanes and saved Bermuda from a straight blow from the hurricane code-named "Easy."

"Easy" was headed for Bermuda when it tangled with hurricane "Fox." The island's shores were swept

USSR Expected To Woo Nippon With Own Pact

West's Diplomats Fly To Washington

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Western world's top diplomats left by plane today for Washington for new conferences on global political strategy after a highly successful Japanese peace treaty session here.

"Mission accomplished," said Secretary of State Dean Acheson, smiling.

He posed affably with British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France before they took off in an Air Force Constellation.

They took with them a Japanese treaty signed yesterday in San Francisco's Opera House. Acheson also had a series of pacts for security in the Pacific.

Russia—having failed to wreck the conference—was believed now likely to try to woo Japan away from the U. S. and her Western allies.

Russia Seen Drafting Treaty

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko quit the conference yesterday, shortly before Japan's Shigeru Yoshida signed the treaty putting his country on an equal footing again with 48 other nations.

Gromyko's main excuse for not signing was that Communist China had not been invited to take part in the conference and that Russia's attempt to amend the treaty was rejected.

As Russia's failure to sign the peace with Japan still leaves her legally at war with that country, the Soviets will have to make some diplomatic move if they are to retain their embassy in Tokyo.

Russia is expected to make her play to woo Japan away from the United States and her Western allies by drawing up a treaty.

One of the Russian proposed amendments in San Francisco was to extend Japan's sovereignty to the Bonin, Ryukyu and Marshall Islands. The American drafted treaty took these islands away from Japan and put them under U. S. administration. Russia could make propaganda by repeating her San Francisco demands at a new peace conference with the Soviets the next day.

Asiatic Cominform

As co-signers along with Russia, she would undoubtedly invite Poland and Czechoslovakia, Cominform countries who also quit the San Francisco conference.

A Russian treaty conference with Japan would also give the Soviets a big chance to begin organizing an Asiatic Cominform, similar to the group of Soviet satellites in Europe. This Cominform would include India, Burma and Communist China, if the Russians fondest hopes were realized.

It is doubtful if the present government of India would come into an Asian Cominform, but Communist influence on that country might induce Indian leaders with leftist leanings to join.

Newsman Says "Ike" Is Kansas Republican

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Roy A. Roberts, president of the Kansas City Star, had an answer today for the question: Is Gen. Eisenhower a Republican or a Democrat? Roberts said the general told him personally he is a "good Kansas Republican."

And Roberts said he believed the general might be persuaded to run for the White House in 1952.

He predicted he would accept "an honest to goodness draft for the presidency."

Mother Returning Home Finds Bodies Of Four Children

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Armstrong, 44, unemployed and separated from her husband, came home to her one-room West Side apartment this morning after a night out.

She smelled gas, and her heart pounded as she unlocked the door. Her two sons, John, 9, and William Armstrong, 11, were sprawled across a makeshift cot.

A daughter by a previous marriage, Patricia Eakins, 16, and her friend, Kathleen Houghton, 13, lay on a bed strangely quiet.

All were in their nightclothes. Mrs. Armstrong screamed again and again. Neighbors came running summoned police.

Pending autopsies, authorities called it death from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Senators Want "Overwhelming" U. S. Air Power

Speedy Arms Fund Passage Is Urged

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Senators talked today of expanding United States air power until this country can demand that Soviet Russia decide between real peace and war.

"That's the real issue before the Congress and the people," Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) told a reporter as he asked quick passage by the Senate Monday of a record-size $61,103,856,030 military spending bill.

O'Mahoney headed the Appropriations subcommittee which took secret testimony on the defense fund. He will be floor manager for the bill in the Senate.

Billions For Air Force

Included in the huge money measure are many billions to more than double the striking power of the Air Force and the Navy's air arm.

"There is no use to speed up development of such things as atomic weapons and not at the same time develop an air force to carry them," Sen. Maybank (D-SC) said in a separate interview. "That would be like having a wagon without a horse."

As the bill comes to the Senate it carries an extra $5,000,000,000 for expanding "air power." That is in addition to the amounts asked by President Truman and voted by the House.

Money For "Fantastic" Weapons

An unknown—at this time—part of the money is to be spent on new weapons described by President Truman as "fantastic" and by various senators as "stupendous," "startling," "amazing," etc. At least two senators in on the secrets, said the weapons are not atomic and are not guided missiles.

Sen. Lodge urged the Appropriations Committee at closed-door hearings to surpass Communist Russia's air power, saying the Soviets have between 16,000 and 20,000 first rate planes.

"The Russians are ahead of us," Lodge testified in hearing records made public this weekend after censoring.

Child Falls In Well

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Sept. 9 (AP)—Five-year-old Rosalee Dominick showed few ill effects today after tumbling 65 feet to the bottom of an abandoned, dry well.

She was rescued yesterday after 20 minutes on the sandy bottom of the hole.

The child was treated at Union Hospital for shock, a cut on one arm and a skinned knee.

Mother Grieves Over Son's Body

Mrs. Doris Cowan clasps the curly head of her four-year-old son, John, a few minutes after she pulled his body from the Little River Canal in the rear of her Miami, Fla., home. Police said the little boy fell into the water accidentally.

Government Acts To Halt Sales Racket

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board moved tonight to stop the granting of "fictitious" trade-in allowances to get around cash down payments required under consumer credit controls.

To halt a rash of what it considers phony "no money down" offers on television sets, refrigerators and other controlled appliances, the board laid down new rules for judging trade-in deals. It said non-conforming deals will be treated as violations of the control regulations.

Under the law, violators can be dealt punishments as stiff as a year in prison and a $5,000 fine.

The board stressed that the new rules do not prevent any dealer from giving "any trade-in allowances, rebates or discounts that he desires," so long as they are "not used as a cloak to conceal evasions of the down payment requirements."

The chief requirements laid down by the board are that allowances for trade-ins bear "a reasonable relationship" to their true value, and that the necessary 15 per cent down payment on installment sales be figured at 15 per cent of the new article's "cash price . . . net of any rebate or sales discount."

"No money down" sales offers have flourished since Congress passed a law July 31 easing the control terms and specifying that trade-ins may be counted toward the required down payments for TV sets and the like as they always have been for autos.

Board officials said a racket has grown up of offering ridiculously high trade-in allowances and then rigging selling prices so that while the trade-in is accepted as the "down payment," the installment buyer still pays as much as he would have paid for an outright cash purchase with no trade-in.

Two Persons Missing As Trawler Capsizes

FIRE ISLAND, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—A commercial fishing trawler keeled over in rough seas in Fire Island inlet today. Two persons were missing and a third rescued.

The boat was identified as the trawler Ethel, a 35-foot craft from West Sayville, N. Y.

The Ethel capsized 30 minutes after its three-man crew set out on a commercial fishing trip. The accident occurred a half mile off shore.

Air Accidents Kill 23; Bomber Crash Report Believed Hoax

Guns Short Circuit, F-51 Strafes Houses

[By The Associated Press]

An unverified report of a mid-ocean bomber crash Sunday capped a weekend in which 23 persons died in four air accidents on two continents.

Then, in a freak mishap at Long Beach, Calif., the 50 caliber machine gun of an Air Force fighter, on the ground short circuited, spewing bullets into a terrified exclusive residential community.

Thousands were endangered and about 25 houses were hit, but there were no reported casualties.

Sixteen persons died in Sao Paulo, Brazil, Saturday night when a Brazilian airliner rammed into a home just after takeoff. Four persons dining in the house were among the victims. Fifteen were hurt during unsuccessful rescue operations.

In Phillipsburg, N. J., yesterday five persons were killed in the crash of a single engine airplane.

The plane fell in a cornfield five minutes after taking off.

The dead were Edward White of Belvidere, N. J., the pilot, and two 16-year-old girls and two boys.

Other small-plane accidents in Virginia and Pennsylvania resulted in two deaths and serious injury to a woman.

A lone pilot, identified as William

A. Caswell, 27, Schenectady, N. Y., died at Spotsylvania Courthouse, near Fredericksburg, Va.

A two-seater cracked up in lower Moreland Township, Pa., just outside the Philadelphia city limits. A man tentatively identified as Gerald C. Crockenberg, 25, Philadelphia, was killed.

Sixteen passengers and three crewmen of a Northeast Airlines plane were luckier.

This plane, its right engine afire, made a belly landing at the naval air field at South Weymouth, Mass., and no one was hurt.

A report that the crew of a big bomber—even its type could not be established—had parachuted into the Atlantic Ocean alerted rescue planes and air installations all along the east coast yesterday. But as the day wore on the suspicion grew that maybe the whole thing was a hoax.

New Miss America Admits She's Not Much Of A Cook

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 9 (AP)—Miss America of 1952 said today most of her cooking starts with a tin can.

In at least one other domestic field, tall and beautiful Colleen Kay Hutchins of Salt Lake City is less modest about her talents.

She says she makes most of her own clothes.

Whether she can cook is of no concern to any young man in particular. The 25-year-old beauty said she has no special boy friends.

As Miss America, she is under contract not to marry for a year anyway.

In a deep, smooth voice, Colleen answered questions at a news conference.

The next year will be devoted to personal appearances, she said, but beyond that her plans are indefinite. Her triumph return to Salt Lake City has not even been scheduled yet.

Four Officers And Newsmen Go To Kaesong

U. N. Troops Regain Ground, Win In Air

MUNSAN, Korea, Monday, Sept. 10 (AP)—Communist negotiators today charged United Nations warplanes strafed the neutral city of Kaesong, site of the suspended Korean war armistice talks.

TOKYO, Monday, Sept. 10 (AP)—Four United Nations liaison officers flew to Kaesong today to investigate the Communists' 11th and latest charge that the Korean truce city's neutrality had been violated.

Details of the purported incident were not disclosed immediately in the U. N. peace camp at Munsan, Korea, 18 miles south of Kaesong.

Earlier Lt. Gen. Nam Il, chief Communist negotiator to the now suspended truce talks, charged in a broadcast over Peiping radio that Allied planes flew 139 sorties over the Kaesong neutral zone from Sept. 1 to 8. He demanded that the flights stop.

The Communist request for an investigation was received in the U. N. base camp at 3:35 a. m. (12:35 EST Sunday).

Col. Don O. Darrow, Tacoma, Wash., headed the four man investigating team which flew to Kaesong by helicopter. It was the first U. N. command trip into the truce city since Sept. 1 when liaison officers investigated and rejected Red charges that Allied planes dropped bombs near the residence of Gen. Nam.

Five U. N. war correspondents, including Associated Press Correspondent Robert Tuckman, accompanied the officers.

The 15-vehicle motor convoy with U. N. personnel was ferried across the Imjin River in assault boats.

This latest Communist charge came exactly two months after the start of the now halted armistice talks.

Officially thus far the Communists have ignored Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's proposal that the talks be resumed in a new location.

Allies Drive Back, Win Big Air Battle

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Monday, Sept. 10 (AP)—Communist artillery and mortar fire today harassed newly-taken United Nations positions in the west amid speculation the Reds were about to begin a new offensive.

There was no other ground contact with the enemy in the west but 28 U. S. Sabre jets fought a swirling battle with 70 Russian type MIG 15s over Northwest Korea. Two Communist warplanes were shot down and another damaged.

The Far East Air Force said all American planes returned to their bases.

American, Australian, British and Thailand warships hammered the enemy with big guns from the Yellow Sea and the Sea of Japan.

On the west coast, navy guns poured fire into Red positions around the Han River estuary. Off Chinnampo, port city to the north Korean capital of Pyongyang, two junks were sunk.

The Allied advance Sunday was west of Yonchon and was described by a briefing officer as "a limited objective attack." It was near where an Allied company was surrounded four days ago by armor supported Chinese regiments.

Except for 120 rounds of artillery fire the advancing foot soldiers met no opposition.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

Inside Tips On Interior Decorating

John Wheeler Bud Fisher. It is stuffed full of useless papers and forgotten photographs and dust. Some day Homer and I are going to put on overalls and clean it out.

The rest of the office is plain and comfortable. There is one old chair you can tilt back when it works, but throws you if you sit on the wrong end of it, which is nothing new in life. Besides we have four or five others and a flat-top desk. A lot of business has sifted through this layout. On the walls are pictures of distinguished guests, past and present, some autographed, such as General Pershing and Eisenhower, Marshall, Smuts, Governor Cox, Jack Dempsey, etc. Every time we get another photograph we buy an eight-cent frame and a new nail and tack it up in any vacant spot on the wall. My wife comes in once in a while and raises hell, but Sprague and I pay no attention—after she has left.

Now our idea is to get offices back to stern simple styles. It has been my experience if a guy wants to sell some phony stock, he will fix up a fancy layout to impress the suckers. Whenever I went into one of these ornate places of business, I used to be suspicious of the occupants. All that has changed now.

The other day I visited the headquarters of a big company which had just been finished by an interior decorator. The place was full of fancy curtains, chairs so soft that once you sat down, it took a derrick to get you out. I believe in uncomfortable seats so a long-winded visitor gets restless and doesn't stay forever. This layout reminded me of the sort of place my father told me when I was a young man to stay away from. It had everything in it, but the plano.

Many big shots fly around in their private airplanes, and now they are having these interior decorated, too. A guy isn't satisfied when he's up in the air just to sit in a comfortable seat and hope he won't get sick, but the inside has to be all fixed up with drapes and couches and fancy covers for the utility Lily cups in case of an emergency. Pretty soon they'll be putting ruffles on the propellers.

Let one of these professionals start from scratch on a country place, and she'll include everything —barns, garages, and any other spare outhouses scattered around the landscape. I know a man whose friends would fit comfortably into a telephone booth. He bought an estate, and hired an expert to fix it up. She knocked down three or four partitions and finished with a living room big enough for the Republican National Convention. He couldn't fill it if he gave away two-dollar bills to all comers.

The psychologists or psychiatrists—I always get them mixed up—have now developed a new theory about how your surroundings affect your basal metabolism or something. A nervous general returned to Washington from an overseas assignment and had his bedroom done in bright red. It looked like he might have hired someone from the Kremlin. An interior decorator inspected it and shook her head. She persuaded him to change it to soft colors as more soothing with greens predominating. When he got her bill, he developed a case of stomach ulcers.

Some hospital experts claim dull shades are better for patients than plain white and just as sanitary. One clinic is reported to have done over its operating room in green with the surgeons wearing matching professional costumes. I know if I am the patient and get in there full of ether, I am color blind and don't care who the interior decorator is.

Mr. Sprague and I are starting out in a small way with a select list of customers. We may get around to office buildings, country places, yachts, and airplanes later. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Police Continue Probe In Fire Hall Entry

An intruder broke into headquarters of the Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Department early Saturday and stole approximately $75 in cash and merchandise.

State Police said the entry was discovered at 9 a. m. by a bartender, Charles P. Gordon. Admittance to the building was gained by forcing two doors.

Criminal Investigator William F. Baker reported about $25 was taken from amusement machines, $20 from a cigarette device and $16 from two boxes on a back-bar. Some miniatures and fifth bottles of whisky were missing.

Another bartender, Clarence O'Neal, said he left the Main Street premises at 2 a. m.

State Income Tax Evaders Face Stiff Court Penalties

Violators of state income tax laws will be subject to stiff fines and possible prison sentences for being delinquent and filing false returns.

This was indicated in a sentence imposed last week in Baltimore by Judge Joseph Sherbow on two retail hat manufacturers who were fined a total of $5,000 and handed suspended prison sentences on condition they pay the fine and the $3,420.89 in taxes due.

Edward V. Welsh, local field representative of the State Comptroller of the Treasury, said he has been advised by Comptroller J. Millard Tawes through Benjamin F. Marsh, chief of the state income tax division, that the crackdown will prevail throughout the state.

Welsh added, however, that no difficulty has been encountered in Western Maryland in getting prosecutors to bring criminal action against tax evaders. This situation admittedly exists in other parts of the state, because usually the amount due is small.

"We have had 100 per cent cooperation from state's attorneys in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, as well as from tax attorneys and accountants," Welsh declared.

Legislative Council To Study State Betting Plan Tomorrow

The Legislative Council will take a double look tomorrow at gambling—illegal and legal.

While the members of its judiciary committee investigate bookmaking and other crime in Baltimore City, the ten members of the finance committee will explore the possibility of the state's going into the off-track betting business.

To anyone accusing them of chameleon tendencies in taking up a new form of gambling while seeking advice on how to suppress some of the more established varieties, council members say they are doing it by request.

Delegate George C. Wagner (D., Second Baltimore) introduced—and the House adopted—a resolution "requesting the Legislative Council to study the possibility of providing off-track parimutuel betting facilities." That was at the 1951 legislative session.

The resolution envisioned a number of betting establishments in Baltimore City staffed by employees of the Racing Commission or the tracks.

It suggested "these parimutuel betting privileges could be restricted to races run on Maryland tracks, thus increasing by a very considerable number the potential parimutuel bettors."

There was no elaboration of why such a restriction would increase the number of bettors.

The resolution said the plan would "greatly restrict and perhaps eliminate" illegal betting with bookies and the state would gain in new taxes.

Four years ago the Legislative Council went over the same field—with the added idea of licensing bookmakers also debated before it. The day after its public hearing it voted immediately and unanimously to table the subject.

TRAIL BLAZER—with plenty on the ball

How long since you lifted the hood of a car, and took a good look at what's beneath?

We like to have folks do that with a Buick.

You'll find that broad bonnet isn't put there for show. It's packed with horsepower—high, wide and handsome—more horsepower than normal drivers will ever use in full.

And—if you're up to date on modern features—you'll find that this bonnet is packed with these too.

Do you know, for example, that every new engine introduced or previewed in recent years is built on the valve-in-head principle?

Score one for Buick. No Buick engine has ever been built in any other way.

Do you know what it takes to make full use of high compression? A valve-in-head engine!

Score two: Buick has been stepping up compression ratios for years.

But Buick has blazed one trail which other engines still haven't followed—don't ask us why.

Every Buick has a Fireball Engine which, as we've said before, is like having a string of comets by the tail.

Fact is, in every flame-packed cylinder there is a comet—rolled into a swirling ball by a special turbo-top piston—touched off by a flashing spark every 5 inches you travel in a Buick.

That's why we're proud to show folks that Buicks have a Fireball Engine—and prouder still to have them take one of these thrilling performers out on the road.

Want to try it? Come in and see us soon.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

last week, Marsh proposed that the state law be strengthened so that there could be a financial assessment against persons who fail to file returns, possibly because they owe no taxes.

Judge Sherbow, in imposing the sentences, warned that those who transgress hereafter will do it with their eyes wide open and know what the penalties will be. I want it known that this is all the warning they are going to get. It will be pay up or else," the Judge asserted.

Welsh, in commenting on the crackdown, said delinquents, after being served assessment notices, will be given 30 days to pay.

Anyone wanting assistance or advice in state income tax matters can receive it at the local office, 9 Market Street.

"We are prepared to assist all who have not filed," Welsh said, adding "it is our duty to see that the taxpayers do not make overpayments."

Welsh revealed that there have been approximately 50 prosecutions in the state for failure to file returns.

Moratorium Granted
Incidentally, the case in Baltimore is the first in Maryland for filing fraudulent returns. Convicted were Abraham and Jack Sekulow, who operate nine millinery stores in Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia and Tennessee. They were charged with filing fraudulent returns for the years 1942 through 1947. Each of the brothers was fined $2,500.

It was pointed out by Welsh that arrangements have been made to microfilm all federal returns of Maryland taxpayers for comparison with state returns.

Comptroller Tawes on Friday agreed to the 30-day moratorium suggested by Judge Sherbow on the

Peace Talk

Marshal Voroshilov, member of the Soviet Politburo, delivered a speech in Bucharest which, like Molotov's recent attack on the West in Warsaw, is considered a major pronouncement on Russian foreign policy—otherwise described as the Soviet policy of peace.

Like Molotov, Voroshilov attacked Tito of Yugoslavia and predicted the "wild rape and terrorism" of his regime "cannot long continue." But most of his attention was reserved for the United States.

America's Far Eastern policy, he said, consists of "open brigandage." American military operations in Korea have been marked by "unheard-of atrocities," savagery and barbarity "that have no parallel in history." Americans are "imperialist beasts of prey" whose "foul deeds, open plunder and rampant exploitation" are notorious throughout the world.

Voroshilov warned Romanians not to forget for one minute Lenin's warning that the bourgeoisie "is ready for any kind of savagery, barbarity and crime in order to defend existing capitalist slavery." America, he said, is behaving just as Lenin predicted.

The conclusion of this peace talk seems a little inconsistent with the rest of it, but it must make sense to Communists, who are doing this sort of thing all the time. Voroshilov concluded by urging that Russia and China join bourgeois France and Britain in a five-power peace pact with fiendish America.

Young Chess Players

The cartoonist's picture of a chess game seems to consist of a couple of bearded old gaffers whose state of suspended animation is emphasized by a few strategically placed spiderwebs. The standard reaction of a person who doesn't play chess on meeting one who does is to say, with a faint undertone of reproach, "Oh, I haven't the brains for that game!"

Tell this to the cartoonists:

The new United States chess champion, Larry Evans, is 19 years old. Another New York teen-ager, Arthur Bisguier, won the U. S. national open championship in 1950, and tied with elderly (63) Dr. S. T. Tartakower of France for first place in the Southsea (England) International championship. Teen-age state champions are too numerous to mention.

Chess, then, can be played without a beard. It can also be played by persons with very modest cerebral equipment, as those realize who know many chess players. Any bright youngster of eight should have no trouble learning it, provided he's willing to sit long enough.

Chess probably takes a little longer to learn than some other games, but even in this respect it compares favorably with Canasta, which hardly stands at the apex of intellectual achievement.

In winning the biennial United States Chess Federation tournament, young Evans handed Samuel Reshevsky his first defeat in six such events. Reshevsky, who is generally considered this country's strongest contender for the world championship, is also beardless. He is considerably older than he was when he began exhibition tours in this country 32 years ago, but the old chap ought to be good for a fair number of years yet. He is 40.

Another Lost Skill

Professional worries about social trends often mourn man's loss of manual skills and his dependence upon the machine. How far the process has gone is shown again in news reports of a power failure which paralyzed Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard for eight hours.

House, street and traffic lights were out, gasoline and water pumps and refrigerators off, theaters and restaurants closed and kitchen ranges cold.

Among these who protested to the Hyannis office of the electric company was a woman who said: "I've got 20 cows in my barn and they all have to be milked by mechanical milkers because nobody around here knows how to milk a cow by hand."

Mechanization of urban life is taken for granted, but it is a little disconcerting to learn how rapidly the same process has changed farm life. The ability to milk a cow was one of the things which set a country man apart from the city feller.

An accomplishment acquired only by long practice, its possessor could feel vastly superior to those who lacked it. The superiority fades with the demonstration that milking is one of the many tasks which can be done as well, and perhaps better, by machinery.

The machine has made life easier wherever power is available. Nowhere has it been a greater boon than on the farm, for many centuries the scene of man's most back-breaking labor. Release from this toil is ample compensation for the loss of manual dexterity and the pride which accompanied it.

The old days when man was independent of machinery and could do with his own hands all that was needful for existence seem good only on the rare occasions when the electric power lines go dead.

No Austerity Here?

There will be "nothing like austerity" in this country unless military mobilization goals are sharply raised. So says Defense Production Administrator Manly Fleischmann. He says as things look now civilian production will not be "cut drastically" from present rates and it should be possible to ease present controls by 1953.

That is reassuring, although the defense production program still is not eating up supplies of materials as it can and will. It is lagging somewhat, with the result the production index for July stood at 213 compared to 222 in June. Defense plants did not take up the slack caused by reductions in civilian output, so there was some unemployment and a loss in production.

If the trend has now been reversed, as officials seem to think, the reversal has been caused by expanding defense production. The program will bite deeper and deeper into supplies of essential materials. Changes that have already begun to show up plainly in consumer durable goods will become inescapable. Automobiles, for instance, will have less chromium trim.

Meanwhile, the dollar is likely to look more and more emaciated. But Americans do not face the same bleak prospect that the British and others are forced to live with. There is still hope that ever-increasing taxes will rouse the American people to action before they, too, will be but serfs of a socialist state. The great productive capacity of this country, if it is not allowed to disintegrate, will be the American people's salvation.

It is encouraging assurance that Mr. Fleischmann offers. But a vigilant and aroused public is needed to hold the bureaucrats responsible for continued high production.

How To Keep Well

The Lame Back

Women often wonder why backache is so common. The disorder is caused by fatigue in most cases and generally respond to rest. I told this to a young mother not long ago and she said: "Rest? Where do you get that?"

The woman with several youngsters and a home to take care of is a good candidate. She spends hours doing the laundry, cooking, dishes, house-cleaning, and shopping. This adds up to a tremendous work load for the back muscles to carry. Mothers are inclined to bend down and lift a 20 to 25 pound baby dozens of times daily. Housewives could take a lesson from men on how to lift a weight from the floor. They usually squat and, by keeping the back straight, the leg muscles are made to do the work. Women are prone to bend over, reach for what they want, and then straighten up. All the force is borne by the lower back.

Back strain is relieved by a combination of rest and exercise. In more severe cases, complete bed rest helps most. The mattress should be smooth and firm; sagging is offset by inserting a piece of plywood between the springs and the mattress. Additional relaxation is offered by placing a pillow under the knees when lying on the back, and between the knees when on the side. It is not advisable to set up in bed but, to ease the monotony, the sufferer may sit upright in a chair for 30 minutes three or four times daily. A heating pad or hot moist towels are soothing and often counteract spasm. Treatments of this kind can be given 20 minutes, noon, and night.

When distress is not too severe, most women fare better by taking a short rest in midmorning and afternoon, lying on a hard surface with the knees slightly flexed. Sometimes strapping the back with adhesive or elastoplast will help. A light plaster of paris cast or a postural girdle has the same effect. Pain killing drugs also are of value when complete relief does not follow other measures. Muscular relaxation may be induced with muscle relaxing compounds like mephesin. The effect of this drug is remarkable but is too temporary to be of practical value. It is used occasionally, however, as a test for spasm. The preparation is potent and must be used with care.

The spine should be X-rayed even though there is a good chance that strain is responsible. A thorough examination also is in order. Poor posture and one short leg are other causes of back strain. Arthritis is another possibility. A number of painful internal disorders are reflected in the spine. Individuals with gall bladder disease or inflammation of the pancreas or in the pelvis may complain of back pain. Many years ago a middle-aged woman consulted me because of backache that had been bothering her for years. She had worn every type of support available and even had been sent to a spa for rest and the baths. Examination disclosed that most of her pain was near the left kidney and X-ray demonstrated a large stone in this organ. Backache disappeared promptly after the calculus was removed.

Mechanization is coming to the rescue of milady's back. Electric dishwashers, automatic washers and dryers, and electric polishers will remove much of the strain of housework.

BENUMBED ARM
P. T. writes: If I sleep on my right side my left arm becomes numb and vice versa. Could mild anemia be responsible?

REPLY
This is doubtful because in your case posture seems to be associated with the symptom. This suggests that pressure on a nerve is responsible. Numbness may be a symptom of anemia but in such cases the symptom is more constant and is not related to the position of the extremities.

MANY TONSILS
Mrs. J. writes: What are the names of the different tonsils in the body?

REPLY
The palatine, or faucial tonsils usually are located to the right and left of the throat proper. The adenoids, lying above these structures, are called the pharyngeal tonsils. Below are the lingual tonsils, found on the base of the tongue. The tissue that surrounds the opening of the Eustachian tubes (which connect the ears and throat) sometimes are referred to as the tubal tonsils of Gerlach. There is a fold in the voice box (false vocal cord) that is called the laryngeal tonsil.

RED TACTICS
M. W. writes: Do the Communists inject drugs into prisoners to force confessions from them?

REPLY
First they try mental torture to destroy the victim's thought processes. If this third degree method is not successful, narcotics are given to cause confusion. These include mescaline, marijuana, morphine, the barbiturates, and alcohol. If the prisoner's body collapses before his mind does he is given stimulants such as benzedrine, caffeine, or coramine to keep him conscious until he confesses. Mussolini had a simpler method—castor oil.

A GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL on

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Good Men Have Been Driven Out Of Government; Competent Replacements Cannot Be Found; Congressmen Should Reform Their Own Colleagues

(Ed. Note—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by distinguished guest columnist. Today's guest column is written by a high federal official on behalf of himself and a number of his colleagues in various agencies. It is unsigned for obvious reasons.)

WASHINGTON — To members of the Congress:

You gentlemen in Congress are now conducting what may prove to be highly useful studies of morals and ethics in government. On behalf of myself and others who are striving to bring good men into government, I respectfully urge you to look carefully at Congress itself. Specifically, won't you take a good look at that small percentage of your colleagues who are effectively driving able men away from government? A few illustrations will tell the story:

There is a brilliant young American executive who, in his early 20's, made a careful study of Communism. Intellectually curious, he purposely exposed himself to Communist recruiters, listened to all their arguments, and argued with them late into many nights. After some months of this, he emerged with the conviction that Communism was a fraud. He became a vigorous anti-Communist — all the more effective because he knew what he was talking about. He still feels so strongly on the subject that, at substantial sacrifice, he recently took an important job in the cold war. He was, of course, investigated fully — and he received a clean bill of health.

Leaves Government

Soon, however, he heard that two members of Congress were preparing to attack him publicly. Clean bill of health or not, they laid plans to lambaste him as one who "admits he once consorted regularly with known, card-carrying Communists." At this, the official took stock of the interests of his children, his wife, and his own reputation. He left government. Today he is a key executive in a major U. S. corporation. His government post is filled now by a colorless, cautious mediocrity.

Mr. Y. is a specialist in highly complex and technical government work. Except for a few years in private enterprise as a young man, he has devoted his entire career to government service. Working his way up through the ranks, he gained such a reputation that he has been offered private jobs paying far more than his government salary. He was so devoted to his work that he stayed on at his $10,000-a-year job, even though he has a family of five to support. But this year he came up as a witness in routine hearings before a hostile congressional committee. He found himself being ridiculed because he was doing a major government job "without ever having held any important assignment in private enterprise." Disgusted, Mr. Y. will probably leave government soon to take a $22,000-a-year executive job on the outside. His superiors have no idea where they can find a competent replacement willing to work for federal pay.

One veteran chairman of a special appropriations subcommittee is known for his merciless bludgeoning of government witnesses. He frequently attacks their loyalty and integrity without apparent reason. When one official replied to the attacks in kind, the appropriations for his entire agency were decimated. Such, as you know, is the life-and-death power of the typical committee chairman. And, of course, regardless of a chairman's conduct, it is unheard of to remove him so long as his party is in power.

Used For Campaigning

One able executive from private business came into government for patriotic reasons. He made a remarkable record as a conscientious public servant. Recently he found himself publicly and bitterly attacked by a key committee chairman as an unconscionable squanderer of public funds. The only known motive for the attack was that the chairman, facing re-election troubles, felt he needed to make headlines as an "economizer." He picked the first handy victim. If the victim had answered back as he wanted to, vital legislation needed by his agency would have died in committee. So he bit his lip and took it.

Mr. C. a few months ago was just about persuaded to give up a top-flight outside position to perform a vital job in the national emergency. Before actually making the change, however, he read the record of his able predecessor's appearances before several congressional committees. He found some of them all right, but two were shocking. When he finished reading the transcript of vitriol, insult and personal abuse in these two cases, he said "to blazes with it." He remained in his more lucrative, comfortable, and secure private post.

Yes, Mr. Congressman, you and most of your colleagues want to see able and conscientious public servants bearing the enormous burdens of government today. But a relative handful of your colleagues, some spoiled by secure tenure in positions of enormous congressional power, are doing their best to see that good men are kept out—or driven out—of government. While you are in a reforming mood, please take a good look at the conduct of some of your own colleagues on Capitol Hill. Perhaps you can find a way to help those of us who are striving desperately to get and keep able executives in government.

Matter Of Fact

Korea, Manchuria, Siberia?

WASHINGTON

Without exception, the American leaders still believe that the Soviet leaders do not want a general war, and they are "holding that thought," as the pep lecturers used to say. None the less, it is also true that the fever chart is currently rising continuously and perceptibly, because of the increasing signs that the enemy in Korea means to end the Kaesong truce talks with another all-out offensive.

The signs are not conclusive. The offensive, if it comes, may perhaps be limited in scope. But on the whole, if the Chinese and North Koreans resume fighting in deadly earnest, it is expected to be a vastly more serious matter than the mere dragging continuation of the war on the old, pre-Kaesong basis. At the very least, there will be many heavy pressures on the side of widening the Korean fighting into a full scale Far Eastern war. For one thing, if the hopes raised by the Malik proposal and the Kaesong talks prove to be false, American public opinion is likely to be so outraged that the whole precarious concept of limited war will come apart at the political seams. Yet the main danger is undoubtedly in the air, and it is a greater danger than most people think.

Two Stages Likely

If this air danger materializes, it will do so in two stages, as it were. The first will be simple enough. The 400 to 500 Soviet jet fighters, and the 500 to 700 older model Russian fighter bombers and medium bombers now in Manchuria will be thrown into the battle at the beginning of the enemy offensive. This Chinese and North Korean force (which is quite probably piloted largely by Eastern European "volunteers") may well achieve substantial initial successes, since our troops in Korea have no experience of enemy air action. In any case, the issue of counter-attacking the enemy air bases in Manchuria will at once be squarely posed.

Thus the second stage of the danger will open. Last December, when Prime Minister Attlee flew to Washington to plead with the President to limit the Korean War, his greatest fear was that Gen. Douglas MacArthur would be allowed to attack the Manchurian air bases. At that time the British participants in the White House talks claimed to have "hard intelligence" that American air attacks on Manchurian targets would bring the Soviet Air Force in Siberia into the fighting. This had been specifically agreed between Molotov and Mao-Tse-tung, so it was claimed, when the Chinese intervention in Korea was first planned.

Since that close-to-hysterical White House meeting last December, a lot of water has gone over the dam. For one thing, the American chiefs of staff have thrashed out with their British and French opposite numbers the hypothetical question, "What to do if enemy air enters the Korean fighting in heavy force?" The agreed answer, decided upon, to be sure, some time before the Kaesong talks, was that counter-attacks beyond the Manchurian border would then become unavoidable. Thus it is now official policy, it need arises, to take the action that British "hard intelligence" said would bring the Russians into the war.

Soviet Intentions Altered?

Perhaps knowledge of the Anglo-Franco-American agreement may have altered the Soviet intentions reported by Prime Minister Attlee last December. High level Pentagon opinion at the moment is that even after all-out air fighting begins, the Soviets will not send in their own Siberian air power unless the Chinese and North Korean air units sustain a severe defeat. If that should happen, however, (and naturally all hopes and expectations are that it will happen) the Soviets will have a hard time holding aloof much longer.

Finally, if the Soviet air power in Siberia is thrown into the fight, it will be an incalculably serious business in the simplest most local military sense. Counting Army, Navy and Marines together, the UN forces have perhaps 18 to 20 air wings now in action in the Far East. But in addition to the Chinese and North Korean Air Force of over 1,000 planes, the Soviets have over 3,000 combat aircraft on their Siberian bases, on a great arc reaching from Vladivostok into central Siberia. These Soviet air units in Siberia have lately had their obsolete aircraft largely replaced, and a great effort has been made to build up their formerly low stocks of fuel and other supplies. In short, the Soviet air power in the Far East today is greater than our own. In the light of all these facts, the risks of a serious renewal of the Korean War ought to be plain to anyone. Yet perhaps the greatest danger is that these risks may not be plain to the masters of the Kremlin. The Soviet rulers may be pressed by the Chinese, or tempted by the hope of a knockout blow, or ready to gamble on the obvious possibility that a full scale Far Eastern war will isolate America from the other Western allies. "I still think they don't want war in principle," as one wise high official put it, "but I've stopped even guessing what they may do in practice." That is the best summary of the current mood.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Legislation By Treaty

Frank E. Holman, former president of the American Bar Association, has devoted himself to safeguarding the American system of representative government against the threat of legislation by treaty. He has written voluminously on this subject and I wish there were room enough in this short column to publish in entirety his scholarly address last month before the national convention of attorneys general.

The subject of legislation by treaty is very technical and hardly understood. Since we have become part of the United Nations, our peril is great, because a treaty signed by the President and ratified by the Senate is ipso facto the law of our land. This is not true of most countries, as Holman says:

"It should be kept in mind that in nearly all nations except the United States, even after the ratification of a treaty, the government may decide when and to what extent, if at all, it is ready to implement the treaty by the passage of national legislation even though the signatories have agreed generally to enact such legislation. We are the only important country (except to some extent France and Mexico) that faces the peculiar legal situation that when a treaty is ratified by our constitutional process, to wit: by our Senate, its provisions become a part of the supreme law of the land without either state or national legislation. Article VI of the Constitution provides that a treaty ratified becomes the 'supreme law of the land'—'any thing in the Constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding.' In this very fundamental respect our Constitution is unique. Unfortunately, those in charge of attempting to 'sell the United Nations' 'human rights' program, including the Genocide Convention, to the American people have chosen to disregard this distinction."

Genocide is very wicked. It means that a nation employs devices to destroy a people within or outside its boundaries. The Genocide Convention is designed to forbid genocide. However, it is an unfortunately worded document which would give the United Nations authority over our national, state and municipal governments and not give to it similar authority over the administrations of other countries. It may be necessary to pass a constitutional amendment to safeguard the United States from the United Nations.

In the matter of the declaration of human rights and the covenant on human rights, the manipulations have been astonishing. These major documents, one of them a treaty, are gilded by the smooth flowing language of humanitarianism, but they contain clauses which can, if applied, abolish some of the major freedoms of the American people. So secretly were the drafts prepared that Frank Holman can say:

"... When the declaration was passed December, 1948, in Paris there was no copy of the final draft available in this country for study or comment by the press or by responsible non-government organizations. Not even the State Department of our own government had a final copy in this country before approval by the General Assembly of a document which, as to our basic American rights, is nebulous and ambiguous and the latter portion of which proposes a collectivist concept of government for all the peoples of the world, including ourselves."

The United Nations, instead of devoting itself to its major function, which is to maintain the peace of the world, is setting up vast controls over the inner life of great nations. It has devised a news gathering convention which, if adopted, would abolish freedom of the press in the United States. This particular document is very damaging to human liberty.

Holman makes this further point:

"The traditional American theory of government was and is that our basic rights are 'retained by the American people' even as against the government itself, and are not subject to change or modification unless the Constitution be changed by the people themselves. Since the people expressly reserved these 'retained rights' and did not grant their control to any agency of government, our governing officials have no constitutional power to take them away, or modify them, whether by treaties or otherwise. Nevertheless, our officials have already done this and are now, in connection with freedom of speech and of press, proposing to do it again."

This is not a small matter. It could be passed over lightly, even by the Senate, in a gush of "one worldism." It is therefore necessary to expose these efforts of Europeans and Asians to control our lives. None of the United Nations agreements of this nature should be ratified by the Senate.

WONDERS . . .

CAN YOU STOP
TO SAVE A LIFE?

Four good rules for driving near schools:

DRIVE SLOWLY . . . be doubly sure that you are in control of your car, able to stop in a split-second notice if a child should dash in front of you.

OBSERVE SIGNS . . . heed signs warning you where to-and-from school traffic is especially heavy; obey the signals of special guards at crossings.

NOTE THE TIME . . . remember that children dash to school in the morning, they dash from school in late afternoon, they dash around school during recesses and at noon. Watch out for these peak traffic periods.

CHECK YOUR CAR . . . take a little time now to have the mechanical condition of your car carefully checked. Don't let bad brakes, faulty steering or lazy windshield wipers undo your careful driving.

In the next fifteen minutes, while you read this message, there will be about 30 automobile accidents in this country and at least one person will die. Of the 15,000 automobile accidents in the United States last year many were the result of careless driving. Many of the victims were school children . . . happy youngsters who were maimed and whose lives were snuffed out because of one careless and fatal mistake. Protect the lives of all children . . . yours and your neighbors! T.N. suggests you drive carefully and drive safely!

The Big Show
From Frisco

The surprising thing about the big show from San Francisco is that it goes under way at about the speed of Battlefields and maintained the pace pretty well throughout. Scarcely had Secretary of State Acheson rapped for order when Andrei Gromyko was away and running.

This master obstructionist, who may easily have irritated more human beings than any man in history, would be an imposing television personality with or without portfolio. Urbane, brilliant and even in Russian-witty, Gromyko is a great performer and the director and cameramen paid him a deference which, considering that he is the symbol of our mortal enemy, may have outraged a great many million Americans but could hardly have been avoided.

But he was not the only good actor. Mr. Acheson must have come as a great surprise to those whose chief impression of him was gained from that leaky faucet, Senator McCarthy. All diplomats are expected to be urbane, but the quality of American urbanity as exemplified by Secretary Acheson is entirely different from that of Gromyko—more flexible, warmer and infinitely more human.

That is television's great advantage as a journalistic medium. It presents the personalities as well as the utterances and the personalities are at least as revealing as the declamations. The British delegate, Kenneth Younger, who looks much too young to bear so impressive a title as British Minister of State, is a personification not only of Great Britain but of a way of life which we are at war to preserve.

He is also a reminder that the age of reason, which is certainly not the one we're living in, must have been a very nice age, and it would be fun to have it back. Mr. Younger's brief remarks were sensible and, above all, moderate. Moderation is as foreign to the Iron Curtain countries as Yorkshire pudding and was in this contest far more illuminating than the profudal question at issue.

Standing next to Mr. Younger, arguing shrilly to preserve his place at the microphone, was the Polish delegate, Stefan Wierblowski, as prime an example of totalitarian man as you can find outside Central Casting. Come to think of it, both Mr. Wierblowski and his strident Czech counterpart, Gertrude Sekaninova, both ran to type a little too closely and would be considered stereotypes if encountered in fiction. Both as speaker and as a person, Mr. Wierblowski gave a pretty bad show and I have a hunch he got a little private spanking when he got home that night. (You can't mark that down as personal favoritism either because, after all, Mr. Gromyko got a good notice and he plays on the same team.)

I will concede Mr. Wierblowski one of the great comedy lines of the show. "Giving us only five minutes to speak, violates our essential rights." Coming from his side of the Iron Curtain this spirited advocacy of the right to speak one's mind at any length is heart-warming and I hope he keeps it up when he gets back to Poland. His was a display of bad manners which would hardly be countenanced at any well-run sorority meeting and served to illustrate that international conferences can be as childish as any other conflict of wills between human beings.

FOR MOTHERS-TO-BE—A three-piece New York play costume in white cotton twill and red and yellow plaided denim, for summer, 1951. The shorts, let out with buttons at the waistband, are shallowly slit up the sides to little bows of the twill. The bra is designed with halter straps and "fill in" of the plaid. Deep patch pockets set onto the jacket open on the side.

There were some great shots. One of Gromyko on the podium more or less surrounded by and, in a way, the central figure of a composition of stairs and blocks looked like something out of Elmer Rice's experimental drama "The Adding Machine." And the closeups of Mr. Acheson putting on his headphones and digesting totalitarian procedure and arguments, something he's dreadfully familiar with, were the most eloquent portraits of an incisive mind at work that I have yet seen.

The opening of the Far West to the blessings of Milton Berle (the live Milton, that is. They've been getting him out there in cans) is an event of great significance in itself, of course. Regular network service will start Sept. 28, a great day all the way around. Because then, kiddies, not only will the West be exposed to Milton Berle; we here in the East will be wide open to the charms of Louella Parsons. That is something I've always held against the telephone. It's a two-edged blade.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKING THE RUFF PAY
ONE of the fanciest and most unusual plays known to bridge is the so-called "trump squeeze." The format for it may vary considerably, but it always bears one distinguishing mark. That is the effect of squeezing pressure on a victimized opponent. If he discards from a certain suit, he enables you, by ruffing it, to establish a winner which could not be developed otherwise. You will perhaps never see it executed. But if you do, you may be almost certain that it will be by one of the world's most skilled cardsmen.

to make sure East couldn't overruff if he held only two clubs. Then he proceeded to build a beautiful trump squeeze, scoring four top hearts and leaving a lethal lineup.
He retained in dummy after the seventh trick his top three spades and top three diamonds. Suppose you underscore all the remaining cards, so you can appreciate the play. In his own hand he held the spade 4, heart 9-6 and diamond 8-3. West meanwhile had pored to the spade 7-6-3, diamond K and club Q-7 and diamond J-10-9. Now he led the heart 9. West tossing a spade, dummy the diamond 7 and East being ruined. If he threw a diamond, the diamond A and Q, spade A, ruff of a spade by the heart 6 and then the diamond 8 would end the hand. East tossed the spade 9, however, just as ruinous. South led the diamond 3, prepared to finesse, and used the A on West's K. The spade A scored, the spade 10 was ruffed with the heart 6 to fell the spade K and establish the Q, and finally he led to the diamond Q and used the spade Q for the last trick.

Charles Lochridge, a true top-notch from New York's best, realized, after West's lead of the club K and what he saw in the dummy, that practically every card endangering his contract was bunched with East for the latter's double. Under those circumstances, he could not depend much on the spade and diamond suits. However, with East having to guard against both of them, a squeeze of some kind figured to be in the cards.

To give himself correct timing for such a play, he let West hold the first trick, then took the repeat of clubs, the J, with his A. Promptly he led his third club and ruffed it with dummy's heart K

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9 (INS) — Well, hello. Here I am, back at my typewriter.

Greta Garbo, who starred in "Flesh and the Devil" at the very height of her fame as a screen star, has promised to play one scene in the remake of this picture.

Clarence Brown, directing the new version and who directed the old silent picture, is having the scene written for Garbo.

How well I remember when "Flesh and the Devil" was premiered. Garbo was in love then with Jack Gilbert, her co-star. Clarence gave a party at the old Montmartre cafe in honor of the two stars, and Garbo was a picture in pink chiffon. She had none of that fear of people that she has now and she danced again and again with Jack. Those were really the days.

While I was in New York I heard that Carol Channing's next Broadway show will be the musical version of Pierre La Mure's "Moulin Rouge."

Carol is such a hit in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" that she has had many offers, but she chose that La Mure book, which, of course, is the life of Henri-Toulouse-Lautrec.

Alfred Burrows is adapting it, and Cy Feuer and Ernie Martin, successful producers of "Guys and Dolls," will produce. Oh, yes, I almost forgot to say—important—Cole Porter is writing the score. So it sounds as if Pierre really has himself a good show.

Ironically that Life Magazine should come out at this time with a completely erroneous story that 3,000 motion picture theaters have closed and that our picture business is doomed.

Never in our history have we had as fine product as this year. "David and Bathsheba" is crowded to the doors, "The Great Caruso" and "Show Boat" have played to capacity. "Here Comes the Groom" is doing good business—and wait until "An American in Paris," "The Earth Stood Still," "The Desert Fox," and "Blue Veil" are released. Do you think for a moment that Life would dare attack the steel, the woolen or the automobile business as it does pictures? Certainly not. Yet our studios put down the red carpet for this publication, which has always taken a derogatory attitude toward Hollywood.

If the picture business doesn't take some stand on an article of this type, which seeks to destroy it, then they deserve the treatment they have received from Life and Time in the past.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, dowager queen of New York society has not left her bed in four months. But her son Neil writes, "this isn't keeping mother from entertaining at her bedside. There were six for dinner last night."

Mrs. Vanderbilt's illness, due to her advanced age, is the main reason Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh dropped New York from their itinerary when they visit the USA this fall. No other blue-blood is considered sufficiently important to entertain royalty.

It was on Mrs. Vanderbilt's yacht in 1913 that romance bloomed between the present King of England and his Scotch queen.

Snaphots of Hollywood collected at random.

Carmel Myers is marrying Al Schwaberg, president of Paramount Distributing Company. He is a widower and Carmel's husband, Ralph Blum, has been dead for over a year. She has been very successful in her own TV show.

Congratulations to the Richard Contes. They have adopted a new baby infant whom they are naming Mark.

What goes with Errol Flynn and Patrice Wymore? He's in Jamaica and she goes to Las Vegas to fulfill a night club engagement. Is she also untying the marital knot at Las Vegas?

Lana Turner, who held on to her marriage as long as was humanly possible, will divorce Bob Topping—but when, I don't know.

That's all today. see you tomorrow.

WIFE PRESERVERS

When you move, wrap each dish with at least two thicknesses of paper, and stand them up around the edge with the bottom of the plates toward the outside of the barrel. Packed horizontally, they may crack.

Long exposure to sun will rot garden hose. Don't drag the hose through oil drippings; never step on it or drive over it. To repair a leak cut hose at the break, remove damaged part, then join together with a metal hose mender. Small leaks can often be mended with friction tape.

Crop yields in the United States have increased about 45 per cent in the last 25 years. Milk production per cow has increased 2 per cent.

Is your posture shoddy or second rate? Today's test will tell you whether it's time you took steps to improve it!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

You may have the face of Helen and the clothes of Carnegie, but the whole effect will be spoiled if your posture is second rate. Since it's just as easy—and far more comfortable once it becomes habit—to hold each part of your body from top to toe in its natural position, why not do it?

Do you do it now, or don't you? That is the question you can answer immediately if you'll stand before a long mirror with a tape measure, weighted at one end by a spool of thread.

Mirrored Answers
Stand in your very best posture with your right side toward the mirror. In your left hand, hold the unweighted end of the tape at the tip of your right ear, letting the weighted end fall free toward the floor.

Now, and this is the moment to be honest with yourself, does the tape fall through each of the following points: Your shoulder joint? Your hip joint? Close to the back of your knee cap? The middle of your foot?

An honest yes answer to each question may indicate that you are already carrying your clothes in a way that is the envy of all your feminine associates. It definitely proves that your body is well aligned. But don't jump to the conclusion that your posture is all that it should be. This test does not check the grace of your stance—you may have much to gain from the future columns that will tell you how to put a fine new finish on it.

Perfection Ahead
No answer at any point signals a danger which you should immediately work to eradicate. Watch this column next week for routines designed for that purpose and clip today's test for future reference if you wish to speed up the perfection of your posture.

In the meantime, do as the Powers Girls do, and make this your daily trick, just to check up on the state of your grace: Stand with your back against a wall so that your head, shoulders, hips and heels touch it. Try to push the small and curve of your back flat against the wall. Hold, relax, and repeat ten times daily. If your back refuses to cooperate at first, keep at it and soon it will! A straight-held back is vital to good posture.

Tomorrow: Teen cosmetics.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

Do some people "naturally" make friends?

Answer: Yes, and they do so by being "natural"—that is, free from fear and conflict. It is true that all of us are born with "selfish" instincts which, if given free rein, tend to alienate others. But we also have an instinctive desire to be loved which normally leads us to restrain our selfishness so as to enjoy our neighbors' good will and affection. If we do not do this, it is because we are afraid to trust them to be friendly, which in turn means that we felt we were "rejected" by our parents. If you're basically fearless, you'll make friends as naturally as you breathe.

Should you be glad your girl is a tomboy?

Answer: That depends on whether her interest in boyish activities like climbing trees is natural or "compulsive." There is no reason why a girl of ten or thereabouts should not enjoy the same things that a boy does and be permitted to do so without interference. But if she plays baseball, not because she likes it, but to show "she can do anything a boy can" and if she avoids the company of other girls in favor of that of boys, you have reason to be concerned. She may be developing a pattern of false masculinity that will hamper her becoming a true woman when she grows up.

By LAWRENCE GOULD Consulting Psychologist

Are VA mental hospitals progressing?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Herbert C. Modlin, chief neuropsychiatrist at the famous Winter VA Hospital, Topeka, Kansas. Far from being the mainly custodial institution that so many mental hospitals have been in the past, the modern VA Hospital is concentrating on a positive mental health program which includes maintaining the health of recovered patients. This involves converting the neuropsychiatric hospital into a "general" one, providing first-rate medical and surgical care as well as social service and vocational rehabilitation. The new type of hospital is also a center of psychiatric research.

George Geatz outpitched Glenn Deremer to give the Cumberland Lloyd Order of Moose a 2 to 1 decision over the Centerville Reds yesterday at Centerville, evening up the best-of-five game Interstate League playoff series between the teams at two wins each.

Romney's Rockets squared their series with the Moorefield Legion by defeating the Hardy Countians at Romney by the score of 6-3. It's also two wins for each team in this series.

The fifth and deciding contests in both series are set for Saturday. Romney and Moorefield will tangle at Romney at 3 p. m., and the Moose and Centerville will clash at Penn Avenue field at 4 p. m.

Mickey's Hit Decides

Geatz had a shutout in his grasp until the fifth inning when Glenn Street singled and scored on Dwight Rose's three-base wallop.

Deremer yielded eight hits, including two singles by Jim Gaffney and three-baggers by Clark and Manager Joe Geatz. He fanned six Geatz tossed a five-hitter, including triples by Dwight and Homer Rose and whiffed eight batters.

Pete Elliott played a prominent part in Romney's victory over Moorefield. His two-bagger started the two-run rally that tied and won the game in the fifth stanza and his triple after Henderson and Blaine Turner had singled added two more tallies in the sixth frame.

Win After Two Out
Trailing 3-2, Romney's winning rally came after two out in the fifth. Elliott rapped a double to right and went to third on Bill Sisk's single. Both runners scored on "Buck" Corbin's single followed by an outfield error.

Blaine Turner paced the Rockets' 12-hit assault with a two-bagger and two singles. "Pete" Elliott smacked a triple and double and Lilburn Henderson and Bill Sisk had two singles each. For Moorefield, Warden Hott hammered a double and single, Don Smith a double and single and Johnny Vance a home run.

HOME RUNS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 9 (AP)— Three bunts paid off for the Cleveland Indians today as they led to the winning run in the top of the ninth for a 4 to 3 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The triumph kept the Indians within breathing distance of the league-leading New York Yankees.

Jim Hegan opened the ninth with a bunt that went foul down the third base line but it pulled rookie Jack Maguire in and Hegan followed up with a sharp single down the same line. It could have been an out had Maguire been back where he started.

Pitcher Mike Garcia, who got the Indians out of trouble in the eighth with brilliant pitching, bunted to Hank Artt who threw late to second—all hands reaching base safely.

A follow-up sacrifice bunt by Dale Mitchell put Hegan on third from where he scored with the big tally on Bob Avila's long fly.

It was Garcia's 19th triumph this year. Box:

Hollandworth Wins In 23-Hole Contest

Max W. Bastian, manager of the local G. C. Murphy Company Store, advanced to the semi-finals in the championship flight of the men's fall golf tournament at the Cumberland Country Club by defeating Charles S. Catherman, Jr., yesterday, 1 and 1.

Bastian, one-time Carnegie Tech grid star, is the defending champion.

Bastian will oppose the winner of the Russell Ponton-Beacham match, Clifford Roby will battle Zembower and Judge Harris will face John Topper.

Dr. John K. Rozum moved to the semi-finals of the first flight by winning two matches. He defeated Ernest Widener, 8 and 6, and James McKelvey, 5 and 4.

George Schwarzenbach became a semi-finalist in the same flight by defeating Don Snyder, 6 and 5. In another match, George Young won over Walter Eyer, 4 and 2.

Dr. Rozum will play the winner of the Francis Cook-Dr. K. P. Heintz match and Schwarzenbach will meet the victor in the Young-Cawley match in the semi-finals.

Benny LaNeve defeated Charles Zembower, 2 and 1, to reach the semi-finals in the second flight where he will face the winner of the R. E. Guard-Stanley Jacobson match. Other pairings are Cy Bowers vs. Fritz Eiler and John Mosner vs. Sam Gantt.

In the longest match of the tourney, Ray Hollandworth defeated Fletcher Horn, 1 up in 23 holes, in the third flight. George Millenson was extended 19 holes to beat Paul M. 200 Golfers Ready For Amateur Meet BETHLEHEM, Pa., Sept. 9 (INS)—Two hundred premier amateur golfers set off on the mad scramble of the United States Golf Association's amateur championship tomorrow with defending champion Sam Urzetta seeking to break a 16-year old tradition.

Not since Lawson Little won the title in 1934-35 has any champion repeated the following year. In fact, the only man to win the crown more than once in that time—Willie Turnesa—did it with a decade between—in 1938 and 1948.

St. Wendelin's High To Battle LaSalle Here Friday Night

John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, John Blough and Charles Bolard will officiate as referee, umpire and head linesman in LaSalle High School's opening game of the 1951 grid season with St. Wendelin's High School of Pittsburgh on Friday night at 8 o'clock at the local stadium, it was announced last night by Brother Joseph, director of athletics.

LaSalle lost to St. Wendelin's last year by the score of 25-6. Fort Hill plays Linsly Academy of Wheeling here Saturday night while Allegheny High opens its season with Beall High on Saturday afternoon at Prosbury.

Romney High opens its campaign at Berkeley Springs on Thursday afternoon.

Other games this weekend are:
Friday—Ridgeley vs. Alumni, Petersburg at Thomas, Charles Town at Keyser and Greenbank at Moorefield.

Saturday—Potomac State at Glenview.

Turpin Hopes To Prove Win Was No Fluke
NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—Midweight champion Randy Turpin will attempt to prove his victory over Ray Robinson was no fluke when he meets the Harlem fighter in a return 15-round title bout in the Polo Grounds on Wednesday night.

A sellout crowd of close to 50,000 is expected to pay $500,000 for the battle of the year. The total receipts, including the gate, movies and the theatre-cast to movie houses in 10 cities may aggregate a million dollars.

Despite Turpin's amazing victory—probably the biggest upset in 25 years—the bookmakers have established Sugar Ray as the favorite at odds ranging from 2 to 1 to 12 to 5.

Turpin won the crown from Robinson with a 15-round decision in London, July 10. It was the first time the 23-year-old British negro had ever gone more than eight rounds in a fight. And it was Robinson's first defeat in over eight years and only the second of his long, fabulous career.

All around, it's a big week for boxing with other fine attractions around the country.

At Philadelphia's Shibe Park Monday night, undefeated Gil Turner, a 20-year-old knock-kout, faces Ike Williams, the former lightweight champion from Trenton, N. J., in a ten-round bout. The same night in Pittsburgh, undefeated Bob Baker of Pittsburgh meets rugged Dale Hall of Chicago in a ten.

In Baltimore Wednesday, veteran Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland opposes talented Harold Johnson of Philadelphia in a ten-rounder that will be broadcast and telecast via the C. B. S. networks. The bout starts at 9 p. m. (EST).

The Friday night radio-T.V. show will come out of Madison Square Garden as usual. The feature ten rounder matches middleweights Gene Hainstock and Harold Green. This one starts at 9 p. m. (EST) too.

Chancellors Sweep Opening K-C Match
The Chancellors won three games from the Guards and the Records scored a 2-1 victory over the Grand Knights yesterday on the Club Recreation alleys as the first half race of the Knights of Columbus Bowling League season got underway.

John Carroll of the Chancellors posted a 184-97 for highest set of the day. Other high scorers were: Joe Felten, Records, 166-430; Steve Hornick, Guards, 184-453 and Paul Stakem, Grand Knights, 150-410.

Ronnie Ranker Stars As Hyndman Captures Pair From Phillies
Ronnie Ranker grabbed the spotlight yesterday at Hyndman, pennant winner of the Pen-Mar Little League, defeated the Phillies, pennant winner of the Dapper Division of the Cumberland League, in both ends of a doubleheader at Hyndman. The scores were 8-7 and 15-14.

Ranker's grand slam homer in the last inning won the first game. He also belted a double and single. In the nightcap affair he smacked a homer and two doubles. Arthur Washington of the Phillies pounded a homer and pair of singles in the opener while Ronnie Diehl lapped three singles in the second tilt. The scores:

FIRST GAME
PHILLIES 010 100-7 11 0
HYNDMAN 010 100-8 11 0
Lehman and Jamison.

SECOND GAME
PHILLIES 167 000-14 15 3
HYNDMAN 000 098-15 9 4
Baldwin, Smith, Winters and Garlitz, Hanekamp, Lehman, Ranker (3) and Jamison.

Eckhart Bows To Mt. Savage

Lefty Crump Wins Series Opener, 12-2

Lefty Bob Crump kept seven hits well spaced and struck out eight yesterday in pitching the Mt. Savage Braves to a 12-2 victory over Eckhart in the first game of the best-of-three playoff finals in the Pen-Mar Baseball League.

A large crowd at Mt. Savage witnessed the opener.

Eckhart will be the scene of action next Sunday at 2:30 o'clock.

The Braves rapped Hansel, Haberlein and "Moose" Arnone for 14 safeties. Paul Dickel headed the assault with three singles while Bill Best, Bill Cunningham, George Shaffer and Don Blank got two hits each and Jimmie Gos larrupted a three-bagger. Don Blank turned in several nice catches in left field for the home club.

Hughes paced Eckhart at the plate with an 8th inning homer and single.

CAP. Lt. Col. H. A. Kelly, Jr., executive officer; Lt. Col. C. B. Allen, deputy commander; Dr. W. F. Jeffers, plant pathology professor at the University of Maryland; William H. Johnson, district forester, and Col. Bennett Crain, commanding officer of the Maryland Wing.

Operation Oak Wilt Shows Allegany County Infestation

Flying Foresters Spot 136 "Possibles"

Airborne foresters hedged over Western Maryland yesterday in Civil Air Patrol planes to find 136 suspected cases of oak wilt, many of them in Allegany County.

Fourteen light planes, each carrying a pilot and observer, made 17 zig-zag flights over the two counties to look for signs of the mysterious disease which was first found in Maryland, July 19.

District Forester William H. Johnson, one of the observers, termed "Operation Oak Wilt" a success. He said it not only helped to find new areas of possible infestation in Garrett County, but turned up several in Allegany County, where the disease was not known to exist.

Disease Spotted In County
Two strongly suspected areas were located at Dan's Mountain and on the West side of Green Ridge Mountain. About a dozen trees seemed to be dying at both spots.

Johnson said field crews will start checking the suspected areas today. They plan to take wood samples for testing by the University of Maryland. Results are expected to start arriving in about a week.

CAP flyers from all parts of the state joined in yesterday's search. They met at 9 a. m. at Cumberland Municipal Airport, home base for the operation, then split up the maps of both counties and took off. Flights averaged about two hours, and some of the planes made second trips. Leading the operation was Col. Bennett Crain, commanding officer of the Maryland Wing, CAP. Chief spotter was Dr. W. F. Jeffers, plant pathology professor at the University of Maryland.

Col. Crain said a state-wide operation may be held next year if lab tests show Western Maryland infestation is heavy. The only certain infestation is on Savage Mountain in Garrett County, where the original find was made.

The killing disease has been found in several states along the upper Mississippi River and in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, but had not been known to exist here.

Naturalists still don't know how oak wilt spreads over great distances. They do know that it spreads from tree to tree by natural root grafts, but they think it may have other ways of spreading. The disease starts at the roots and withers the leaves, eventually killing the tree.

Must Be Found Soon
Johnson said foresters are anxious to check all suspected areas before leaves of normal trees begin to turn, since the only way to spot the disease is by the wilted leaves.

If the Allegany County infestation is found to be heavy, he said, the areas may be replanted with other types of trees. Only oaks are susceptible to the wilt.

Eight other foresters from the two counties went along as observers yesterday. They were Harry Hartman, assistant district forester; Brooke Bodkin, senior forest supervisor, and Thomas Dixon, forest guard, all of Allegany County; Jack Paulhamus, assistant district forester; Elmer Upole, Sr., senior forest supervisor, and Elmer Upole, Jr., Richard Bond and Charles Thomas, forest guards, all of Garrett County.

Johnnie Whisner, who lives in the area, found the skeleton partially covered with leaves at 6:15 p. m. yesterday about five miles west of Great Cacapon. Following examination the skeleton was taken to police headquarters at Berkeley Springs where several calls will be made to try and locate the owner.

Dr. Willard said the skeleton apparently had been thrown down over the bank near the creek a couple months ago. Proof that it was for demonstration purposes was the manner in which it was wired together.

Mrs. Whisner Dies In Charleston, W. Va.

Mrs. Bella Whisner, about 67, a former resident of Piedmont, W. Va., died Saturday night in Charleston, W. Va., after being struck by an automobile on a busy street there.

Details received at Piedmont concerning the fatal accident were skimpy. Mrs. Whisner was reportedly walking on a boulevard near the gold-domed capitol building about 8 p. m. Saturday when she was struck by a car. It was reported that she died without regaining consciousness.

A native of Scotland, Mrs. Whisner, whose maiden name was Bella Strathairn, later lived at Beryl, W. Va., and Piedmont. She moved to Charleston from Piedmont about 15 years ago.

Mrs. Whisner was a member of Marian Rebekah Lodge No. 16, Westport, and the Presbyterian Church.

Besides her husband, George Whisner, Sr., she is survived by three sons, George, Jr., and Stewart, both of Baltimore, and Aubrey of Charleston. A sister also lives at Charleston.

A Charleston church chapel service for Mrs. Whisner will be held at 11 a. m. today. The body will arrive in Piedmont about noon Tuesday and will be taken to the Fredrick Funeral Home, where it will remain until about 2:30 p. m. Tuesday. A burial service at Philco Cemetery will be held about 2:45 p. m. Tuesday.

The Gleaners Class of Oldtown Methodist Sunday School will meet at the church tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

"Praying With Hands" was the theme of the worship conducted recently by Mrs. Ruth Howard at a meeting of the WSCS of the Oldtown Methodist Church. Mrs. Lester Haugh was co-hostess.

Mrs. Roy Twigg and Miss Mable Twigg, Oliver Grove Methodist Church, were visitors.

Farewell Party Tendered Rabbi Joseph Kratzstein

An informal farewell party was held last night for Rabbi and Mrs. Joseph Kratzstein by members of Beth Jacob Synagogue in the vestry room.

Rabbi Kratzstein will leave this week to take up duties at the Jewish Community Association in Bay City, Mich. He has been located in Cumberland for the past two years.

Prior to coming to the Queen City he was chief rabbi at Luxembourg for two years. From 1929 until 1946 he was rabbi and taught in Zurich, Switzerland. It was at the University of Zurich that he received his degree of Doctor of Philosophy in education. He was also educated at Rabbinical Seminary in Berlin, Germany, and the University of Berlin.

Since October, 1950, he has taught extension courses in mental hygiene and comparative education and philosophy of education here in Cumberland and at Hagerstown. This summer he taught history and philosophy of education at the University of Maryland.

Rabbi Kratzstein was born near Frankfurt, Germany. He met his wife in western Germany. She was active in Switzerland with the scout movement and education. Here in Cumberland she took active part in Sunday School work. Rabbi and Mrs. Kratzstein have a son, Walter, who is attending college in New York City.

Many of the congregation attended last night's party and the couple was presented with appropriate going-away gifts. Refreshments were served by the Women's League.

Over 100 Attended First Sessions

More than 100 Allegany County farmers attended the three meetings arranged around the county last week by the Allegany County Agricultural Mobilization Committee for the purpose of explaining various programs offered by agencies of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Best attendance was at Flintstone High School Friday night, where about 55 were on hand. At the Eckhart Square Circle Club Thursday night, attendance was 40. At LaVale Fire Hall Wednesday night, only 19 were present.

Followup sessions at all three places are scheduled this week so farmers can discuss in detail various facts presented to them last week, according to County Agent R. F. McHenry.

Each of these meetings will begin at 8 p. m. They will be at LaVale Fire Hall, Wednesday; Eckhart Square Circle Club, Thursday; and Flintstone High School, Friday.

Letters are being sent out by Albert O'Neal, chairman of the Agricultural Mobilization Committee, to all of the county farmers inviting them to this week's meetings.

Questions Listed
A number of questions are asked each farmer in this letter. Among these are the following:

Do you have a boy or girl enrolled in a 4-H Club? Is your wife or someone in your family a member of a Homemakers Club? Do you breed cattle artificially? Are you co-operating in pasture improvement? Have you had any farm boy deferred for farm work to help you with your farm labor problems? Have you received any help in planting woodland trees, contour strip cropping, building of farm ponds, constructing terraces or drainage ditches?

"If your answer to any one of these questions is yes, then you are co-operating with the U. S. D. A. in its work with the farm family," O'Neal concluded his letter.

Hudicka said Stern was driving the car. A passenger, Arthur Braunstein, 27, suffered lacerations and was admitted to the hospital. His condition was given as fair.

Altizer Hospitalized In Hit-Run Accident

G. Wilson Altizer, RFD. No. 5, Cumberland, was admitted to Memorial Hospital last night following a hit-and-run accident about 10 o'clock near Port Ashby, W. Va., on Route 28. His condition was reported as "serious" by hospital attaches.

The extent of his injuries were not known late last night and he will be given x-rays and observation. West Virginia State Police said Altizer had been changing a tire off the highway when the hit-and-run driver struck him.

A program instructive to landlords and tenants of the Cumberland area will be presented tomorrow at 11 a. m. over Baltimore Radio Station WBAL-TV (Channel 11).

Presbyterians Will Receive Building Bids

Proposals Due Later In Month

Bids on the new building of the First Presbyterian Church will be received between September 15 and September 30, Adolf Blunk, chairman of the building committee, said last night.

Blunk said that the committee was not yet certain as to the specific date for the receipt of bids. The committee expects that bids will be received from at least three general contractors.

"There is a terrific need for the new building to house the Sunday School, young people's activities, Women's Association and Men's Club programs," Blunk said. "Since Rev. Seth C. Morrow came to the church as pastor in December we have added about 125 new members, bringing our rolls to over 1,000," he concluded.

An application has been made to the Federal Government for permission to proceed with the construction of the building and the committee, of which Blunk and Frank V. Carpenter are co-chairmen, does not anticipate any great difficulty in obtaining this permission.

The church's Building Fund campaign was conducted about five years ago. Nearly all of the pledges made at that time have been paid, according to the committee.

Plans of the building committee call for the demolition of the old building just west of the church on Washington Street and construction of the new edifice on that site.

Gordon L. Bowie is president of the Board of Trustees of the church.

Brakeman Dies When Crushed By Steel Hopper

Keyser Man Was WW II Veteran

A Keyser, W. Va., railroader was crushed to death under a steel-loading gondola car Saturday night at the Baltimore and Ohio's west-bound hump here. He was 31-year-old William E. Miller, Jr., father of four children.

Miller was pronounced dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital. Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said he died of shock caused by abdominal bleeding from a ruptured liver.

Dr. Deming and railroad authorities said the accident happened at 7:40 p. m. when Miller fell under a car he had been riding down for about five months.

Fell Between Rails
No one saw Miller fall, but investigation showed that he was thrown from his heavily-loaded gondola when it coasted against another car which was standing on the track.

Miller landed between the rails and was pinned between the car's brake rigging and the cross-ties. Authorities said he apparently was struck by the wheels.

He was found by Ralph N. Crowe, Frostburg, a fellow worker. Railroaders managed to free him, still alive, without moving the car.

Military Rites
A funeral service will be conducted tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at Keyser Church of the Brethren. Graveside rites at Burlington Cemetery will be by Nancy Hanks Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Keyser.

A native and life long resident of Keyser, Miller was the son of Mrs. Mary Myers Miller and the late William Ernest Miller. He was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors, besides his mother, include his widow, Mrs. Virginia Catherine Miller; two daughters, Shirley Ann and Norma Gene, and two sons, William E. and Vernie Lee, all at home; three sisters, Miss Gladys V. Miller, Mrs. Evelyn Van Meter and Mrs. Helen C. Courtney, all of Keyser, and a brother, Cecil V. Miller, Keyser.

The body is at Rogers Funeral Home, Keyser.

Today's Sermonette

Fear Not, O Land, for the Lord will do great things. Joel 2:21. My People Shall never be ashamed. Joel 2:27.

By REV. H. MAUNSELL RICHARDSON

Today's sermonette is a digest of a sermon preached yesterday at Emmanuel Episcopal Church by the rector, Rev. H. Maunsel Richardson. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Confidence And Pride

To a people who had suffered the ravages of war, devastation of plague, and the pangs of famine, the prophet Joel brought a message of hope. It was a message that enabled the people of Israel to see things in a new light, to look beyond the despair of difficulties in the past and present, and step out into the future unafraid.

Such an about face in human disposition is never easy to bring about. One would think that it would take some great, new and inspiring words eloquently spoken and often repeated, yet to us these words sound simple. They contain the essence of simplicity, and are often known to us all. Confidence and Pride are the words that we would use today.

Confidence in God and what He does through His people. Pride in being a people of a God who does such great things. Confidence in their God and Pride in being His people enabled the children of Israel to lift up their heads and march on into a future, a future that blossomed forth into this great Christian Church and Christian culture that we know.

Stand As Inheritors
Today we stand as the inheritors of the people who heard Joel. We stand as did they, as those who have suffered the ravages of war, the pangs of famine, and the devastation of plague. To make such a statement literally and without explanation is absurd because we are the victors and semi-victors in wars not fought on our own territory, we are the "bread-basket" of the world, and our medical facilities were merciless war on all kinds of disease. Still we do suffer from war, famine and plague.

We have suffered and are suffering the ravages of war, not in the way that the children of Israel did nor the children of Asia and Europe, but just as really and truly ravages to home, to personal moral standards, to business morality, to equilibrium of government, to consideration of the needs and rights of others. In a real way they are the ravages of war, lying inert until they have blossomed forth under the protection of legal brutality and general carelessness of war making. Lost Generation.

We have endured, as well, a true famine, the lack of growth and harvest of the things of God which are necessary for the fullness of life. We are a generation who have lost our way and blame others for our own difficulties. The clergy blame the people for poor church attendance, and people blame the clergy. None seem to consider God in the matter. Labor blames business; business blames labor. Both blame the farmer. None consider the stewardship of a life to be lived unto God. Surely these are the pangs of famine.

We have also undergone the devastation of plague, the plague of a lost sense of values. Our culture has debunked all sentiment, and we have carefully cultured a growth of "footbalitis" which outranks a sense of honor. We have made our government a pork barrel with many greedy hands outstretched to the hands raised in serious government. All of this is done without dishonor, all of it but a symbol of the true loss of values in the hearts and minds of people of today.

Confidence In God
We can be pessimists and see but a dark future for any nation where these conditions exist, but a black future is an outright and foolish lie for any people with an idea of God, whether or not there are atom bombs and guided missiles. To a people who are willing to listen to Joel's admonition "Fear not for the Lord will do great things," the Lord will do them, and do them through those that will listen. CONFIDENCE IN GOD is the first and greatest step, and confidence in God begins with us personally.

The second step, is PRIDE in God. For all too many years, we have been apologetic about God. We have taken the commandment of humility to mean unreasoning of the certainty of God. Even admitting our belief has not been to popular in the recent past. Yet, today, such type of thinking is considered passe by those who really think. "Only college freshmen now talk as if the anti-Christian position were self-evident," said a leading magazine not too long ago. We can, today, take full advantage of the intellectual integrity of our belief as we could not do a few years ago.

Pride In God
We can also take pride in what our God has done through those that love Him, as well as what He will do through us. As we look back at the full sweep of history looking at the good as well as the bad, we cannot help but be proud of what Christianity has meant and done for human beings in every age. Look at the modern world and see the contrast in the value of human life in the minds of the Hindus and Orientals and Marxists as against that value in the Christian mind. Or look at the conditions here in our own country, in the contrast to what the Church stands for and the way in which the pagans are profiting in one way or another from the needs of men. We need never be ashamed of the actions of our God, indeed that our God is a God who does great things.

"Fear not, O Land, for the Lord will do great things," "My people shall never be ashamed," Confidence in God. Pride in God. With these no one is afraid.

Long Explains Traffic Light Problems Here

Replacement Parts Hard To Obtain

A new traffic light for Baltimore and Mechanic Streets has been shipped from Syracuse, N. Y., Commissioner of Police and Fire John J. Long last night. Commissioner Long also observed that a survey is being made with the view of installing some type of traffic signal at the intersection of Greene, Baltimore, Washington and Cumberland Streets, near the Algonquin Hotel.

The traffic signal at the corner of Baltimore and Mechanic Streets was knocked over and demolished by a trailer-truck a couple of weeks ago. A replacement was ordered, but due to material shortages, shipment was delayed.

In Use 20 Years
Long noted that the Potomac Edison Company has been very cooperative in assisting with keeping traffic lights here in operation. The motors on the Baltimore Street lights are 20 years old and are being kept working by constant care and good luck.

A spare motor and necessary replacement parts for these apparatus have never been kept on hand and due to continuous operation the equipment is about worn out, Long stated.

Long said that as quickly as equipment is available, he will have his department keep a spare motor and a spare traffic light on hand for replacement purposes, to avoid a repetition of the hazard created by the missing light at Mechanic Street.

Making Constant Study
He said a number of people have suggested putting up a temporary wooden pole at the corner, but this would not help since the light was also demolished. Others suggested moving a light in from Chase and Greene Street, but the traffic department advised against it because the Chase Street light is needed for the protection of school children at West Side School.

Commissioner Long stated a constant survey and study is underway by his department, local traffic groups and the Potomac Edison Company in an effort to gradually improve the local situation and eliminate existing hazards.

Young Hunter Is Wounded In Freak Accident

A 20-year-old Hinkle Road youth was in fair condition last night at Memorial Hospital with a shotgun wound inflicted in a hunting accident.

State Police Trooper First Class William F. Baker said John P. Reuschel was shot in the right side with a 16-gauge shotgun carried by a hunting companion, 16-year-old Edward C. Hampton, Twigg-town.

Baker said the pair had been hunting groundhogs near Hampton's farm. Reuschel was walking in front of Hampton when the gun went off, driving several pellets into his side.

Hampton dragged his friend several hundred feet to a dirt road and then went for a truck in which he and his brother, Carl L. Hampton, took Reuschel to the hospital. The accident happened at about 7 p. m.

Baker said the weapon apparently snagged on a tree limb and fired. No charges have been placed against Hampton.

Hospital attaches said the pellets have not been removed from Reuschel's body, pending the outcome of his injuries. He is an apprentice worker for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.
